You Can Run, But You Can't Hide

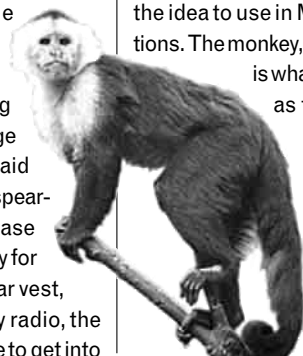

They might make you jump higher, but they're illegal. Even so, cleats made from kangaroo hide are being sold in California, and Assemblywoman Nicole

Parra wants to change state law so that it's legal to buy them. She's aiming to limit a state law prohibiting the importation of kangaroo body parts to cover only 'roos protected by the Endangered Species Act. Many shoemakers use the hides of non-endangered kangaroos to make cleats. (AP)

SPECIAL OPS

Primate Objective

The Mesa, Ariz., Police Department is looking to add some primal instinct to its SWAT team — by looking to a monkey. "It would change the way we do business," said officer Sean Truelove. He's spearheading an effort to purchase and train a capuchin monkey for the unit. Outfitted in a Kevlar vest, video camera and two-way radio, the small monkey would be able to get into places no officer or robot could go, he said. The department is seeking about $100,000 in federal grant money to put the idea to use in Mesa SWAT operations. The monkey, which costs $15,000, is what Truelove envisions as the ultimate SWAT reconnaissance tool: trained for special-ops intelligence, it could unlock doors, search buildings and find suicide victims. The McKaigs need 2,000 people to enter the contest for a total of $300,000 in entry fees, enough to cover the $138,000 they spent on the cafe plus contest costs. Moussaoui Asks for Guilty Plea

Judge, lawyers meet as bid is considered in tumultuous 9/11 case

WASHINGTON | A federal judge is considering for the second time in three years whether to accept a guilty plea from Zacarias Moussaoui, the only person in the United States charged in connection with the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks.

U.S. District Judge Leonie Brinkema's decision is expected to hinge on whether she believes Moussaoui is mentally competent to make the decision, lawyers who have followed the case said Tuesday.

The judge summoned lawyers on both sides of the case to a closed courtroom in Alexandria, Va., on Tuesday to discuss a letter Moussaoui sent the court indicating his desire to plead guilty. The letter's contents are under seal but a legal source said Moussaoui indicates his desire to plead guilty.

Prosecutors and defense attorneys in the case declined to comment about the meeting. However, the source said Brinkema plans to meet with Moussaoui sometime this week. MARK SHERMAN (AP)

Plan for Bolton Vote Falls Through

Senate panel agrees to put vote on hold as new allegations surface

WASHINGTON | John Bolton's nomination as the United States' next U.N. ambassador suffered an unexpected setback Tuesday when the Republican-controlled Senate Foreign Relations Committee scrapped plans for a vote to take a new look at allegations of unbecoming conduct.

No date was set for a vote, but a delay of at least two weeks seemed likely while the committee looks into fresh allegations, including those of a Dallas businesswoman who says Bolton berated her at an international conference a decade ago.

The decision to postpone a vote closed a rancorous session in which Republicans first sought to push Bolton through the committee and Democrats resisted.

"We'll all have to trust each other," said Sen. Richard Lugar, the committee chairman from Indiana, in sealing the unanimous agreement.

Republicans hold a 10-8 majority on the panel, and Lugar had sounded confident early in the session that he had the votes to prevail.

But Republican Sens. Chuck

Hagel of Nebraska and George Voinovich of Ohio, both expressed reservations about a quick vote — as did a solid phalanx of Democrats.

Bolton is a harsh critic of the bureaucracy of the United Nations and thus was a provocative choice for the post. That was enough to generate some opposition, and his troubles were compounded by allegations about how he deals with subordinates. ANNE GEARAN (AP)

Kan. BTK Suspect Waives Hearing

WICHITA, KAN. | The man accused of the BTK serial killings waived his right to a preliminary hearing Tuesday, an acknowledgment that the state has enough evidence to go to trial.

During the brief hearing Dennis Rader calmly answered "Yes, sir" to questions from Sedgwick County District Judge Gregory Waller about whether he wanted to waive the hearing and whether he understood his rights.

Rader, formerly a city ordinance enforcement officer for suburban Park City, is charged with 10 counts of first-degree murder. Rader, 60, will enter a plea at his arraignment, set for May 3. (AP)

A Solemn Day in Oklahoma

Hundreds mourn on 10th anniversary of deadly building blast

OKLAHOMA CITY | Children who lost their parents in the Oklahoma City bombing recited the names of the dead, and mourners gently laid bouquets on empty chairs symbolizing each victim Tuesday as they observed the 10th anniversary of the nation's worst act of domestic terrorism.

In a church that served as a temporary morgue after the blast, more than 1,600 people remembered those who died with 168 seconds of silence starting at 9:02 a.m., the moment that the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building collapsed on April 19, 1995.

They also honored the survivors, the rescuers and the endurance of a damaged city that former President Clinton said "made us all Americans again."

"Oklahoma City changed us all. It broke our hearts and lifted our spirits and brought us together," said Clinton, who was in office on the sunny morning that Timothy McVeigh brought his bomb and hatred for the government to the city in a Ryder truck.

Across the street at the Oklahoma City National Memorial, in the grassy field where the building once stood, 168 empty chairs were a solemn reminder of the carnage of a decade earlier. Teddy bears were placed on miniature chairs representing the 19 children slain in the building's day care facility.

Former President Clinton and Vice President Dick Cheney were among the officials at the Oklahoma City services.

Regina Bonny, a retired agent with the Drug Enforcement Agency who was pulled from the debris, placed wreaths and flowers on the chairs of four slain co-workers. "I pray over them. I talk to them," she said. "I'll never let anyone forget them." KELLY KURT (AP)

Reporters Lose Bid in Leak Probe

WASHINGTON | Two reporters facing jail for refusing to divulge their sources about the leak of an undercover CIA officer's name lost on Tuesday in federal court for the third time.

The full U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit declined to reconsider a three-judge panel's ruling compelling Time magazine's Matthew Cooper and The New York Times' Judith Miller to testify before a federal grand jury about their confidential sources, or go to jail for up to 18 months.

Both publications will ask the appeals court to put off any sanctions while they pursue an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Judge Thomas F. Hogan held the reporters in contempt in October, rejecting their argument that the First Amendment shielded them from revealing their sources. (AP)

New Diet Advice Unveiled

Government releases revised food pyramid with 12 eating guides

WASHINGTON | Concerned about steadily expanding waistlines, the government flipped the food pyramid on its side, adding a staircase for exercise and giving consumers 12 individually-tailored models for improving their eating habits.

Inside the updated pyramid released Tuesday, rainbow-colored bands representing different food groups run vertically from the tip to the base.

Exercise is key to the new system. Fitness expert Denise Austin delivered a pep talk about the recommended 30 minutes of physical activity, represented on the new pyramids by the figure of a person climbing steps toward the tip.

The new guide, dubbed "MyPyramid," encourages Americans to customize their diet and exercise regime along 12 models geared to specific calorie needs and levels of physical activity.

The recommendations include eating 3 ounces of whole-grain foods a day; eating 2 cups of fruit and 2 ½ cups of vegetables a day; and drinking 3 cups of fat-free or lowfat milk a day. LIBBY QUAID (AP)

TIME WARP: President Lincoln look-a-likes check their cell phones before the start of dedication ceremonies at the Lincoln museum in Springfield, Ill., on Tuesday.

Air Force Faces New Allegations

Religious harassment, intolerance complaints surface at academy

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, COLO. | Less than two years after it was plunged into a rape scandal, the Air Force Academy is scrambling to address complaints that evangelical Christians wield so much influence at the school that anti-Semitism and other forms of religious harassment have become pervasive.

There have been 55 complaints of religious discrimination at the academy in the past four years, including cases in which a Jewish cadet was told the Holocaust was revenge for the death of Jesus and another was called a Christ killer by a fellow cadet.

The 4,300-student school recently started requiring staff members and cadets to take a 50-minute religious-tolerance class.

More than 90 percent of the cadets identify themselves as Christian. A cadet survey in 2003 found that half had heard religious slurs and jokes, and that many non-Christians felt Christians get special treatment. ROBERT WELLER (AP)

Bush at Opening of Lincoln Museum

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. | Opening the Abraham Lincoln library and museum, President Bush said Tuesday that its mix of showmanship and scholarship should help generations rediscover the 16th president.

"From the lunch counter to the schoolhouse door to the Army barracks, President Lincoln has continued to hold this nation to its promises," Bush told an audience of thousands — including scores of Lincoln impersonators — gathered on a hot day at the complex.

The dedication of the museum portion of the state-of-the-art showplace capped 25 years of effort. The $145 million Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum is designed to generate new interest in Lincoln and explain his life and legacy. The library portion opened last October.

The new library also offers details of the controversies surrounding Lincoln's policies. The museum presents his changing views on slavery, restrictions on free speech and the limitations of his Emancipation Proclamation. (AP)

In John Paul II's Footsteps

Benedict XVI is expected to continue conservative approach

VATICAN CITY | Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger of Germany, a stalwart defender of church teaching from his Vatican office, was elected pope Tuesday in an unusually speedy conclave, his fellow cardinals choosing a prelate expected to require adherence to the same conservative line of Pope John Paul II.

Pope Benedict XVI, the name the white-haired Ratzinger chose, is 78. Appearing on St. Peter's Basilica balcony as dusk fell, a red cape over his newly outfitted white robes, he called himself "a simple, humble worker."

"Dear brothers and sisters, after the great Pope John Paul II, the cardinals have elected me — a simple, humble worker in the vineyard of the Lord," he said after being introduced by Chilean Cardinal Jorge Arturo Medina Estevez.

"The fact that the Lord can work and act even with insufficient means consoles me, and above all I entrust myself to your prayers," the new pope said. The crowd responded to the church's 265th pope by chanting "Benedict! Benedict!"

Ratzinger had gone into the conclave a favorite among cardinals who appeared torn between choosing a short-term pope, returning the papacy to Italy after Polish-born John Paul or making a stunning change by electing a prelate from Latin America, home to nearly half the world's Catholics.

He had delivered a particularly sensitive homily at John Paul's funeral and followed it up with a fiery speech to the cardinals before they entered their conclave Monday, warning about tendencies that he considered dangers to the faith: sects, ideologies like Marxism, liberalism, atheism and relativism.

"Having a clear faith, based on the creed of the church is often labeled today as a fundamentalism," he said. "Whereas relativism, which is letting oneself be tossed and swept along by every wind of teaching, looks like the only attitude acceptable to today's standards."

As head of the powerful Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, Ratzinger disciplined dissidents, backed John Paul in resisting reforms and urged caution in pursuing relations with other Christian denominations. VICTOR L. SIMPSON (AP)

For Some, Choice Is a Letdown

Ratzinger's election dashes hopes across the developing world

TEGUCIGALPA, HONDURAS | From the shanty-covered hillsides here to the cosmopolitan streets of Buenos Aires and dusty villages in Africa, hopes had been high that the new pope would be someone intimately tied to the developing world.

On Tuesday, there was barely disguised disappointment — particularly among many Latin Americans, who make up roughly half the world's Catholics — that one of their own was not elected to lead the church.

"It should have been a Latino," said Gloria Vazquez, a 50-year-old housewife in Tegucigalpa.

"I would have liked someone different: younger, with new ideas and perhaps with darker skin like us," said Alfonso Mercado, an ice cream seller in Pereira, Colombia.

In Africa, the Vatican's announcement dashed hopes for those who were pulling for Cardinal Francis Arinze of Nigeria. In the southeastern city where he once was bishop, people gathered in restaurants and shops to watch the announcement on television.

"The real Catholics of the world now are in Africa and Latin America, and it would have strengthened the church to have a pope from one of those places," said Okwudili Otti, a 45-year-old businessman. (AP)

Last Benedict Led Church During WWI

VATICAN CITY | The choice of papal names is often scrutinized for hints on what the new pontiff might have admired in popes previously holding those names. Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, in becoming the latest pope, took the name Benedict XVI.

If Ratzinger was paying tribute to the last pontiff named Benedict, it could be interpreted as a bid to soften his image as a doctrinal hard-liner. Benedict XV reigned during World War I and was credited with settling animosity between traditionalists and modernists, and dreamed of reunion with Orthodox Christians.

"The last pope named Benedict was in many respects the first modern pope," said John-Peter Pham, a professor at James Madison University in Virginia. "Benedict XV's efforts to mediate the Great War as well as his humanitarian outreach, while also embracing the Orthodox and Muslims, is what was for his time an unprecedented choice." (AP)

Your duct system functions as the respiratory system of your home. When it becomes contaminated and congested, it should be cleaned so it can 'breathe' normally and efficiently.

If you answer YES to any of the following questions, it may be time to have your air duct system professionally cleaned.

- ✓ Does anyone in the house have allergies, asthma, or other respiratory problems?
- ✓ Does anyone in your family suffer from headaches, nasal congestion, or other sinus problems at night or in the morning?
- ✓ Is there a smoker in the house?
- ✓ Do you have dogs, cats or other pets?
- ✓ Do you notice "musty" or "stale" odors when the furnace or air conditioner runs?
- ✓ Do you notice dust on your furniture shortly after cleaning?
- ✓ Does it seem like there is not enough air flow coming from your vents?
- ✓ Is your furnace equipped only with a standard throw-away fiberglass filter?

Surge of Attacks In Iraq

Parliament roiled after Shiite says U.S. soldier roughed him up

BAGHDAD | Iraqi lawmakers adjourned in protest Tuesday and demanded an apology after a Shiite legislator said he was handcuffed and humiliated at a U.S. checkpoint.

Fattah al-Sheik stood and cried as he described being stopped at a checkpoint on the way to work Tuesday. He claimed an American soldier kicked his car, mocked the legislature, handcuffed him and held him by the neck.

Al-Sheik's small party has been linked to Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr, who led uprisings against the U.S.-led coalition in 2004.

The U.S. military said in a statement that its initial investigation indicated that al-Sheik got into an altercation with a coalition translator at the checkpoint. U.S. soldiers tried to separate them and "briefly held on to the legislator."

Meanwhile, at least a dozen Iraqis were killed and more than 60 wounded in a series of attacks, including two that targeted the army and its recruits.

Laith Abdullah, the husband of a woman hurt in one of the attacks, angrily criticized the legislature for worrying more about its rights than the violence. "The government should be concerned about all the people getting hurt," he said. (AP)

Woman Detained for Paris Hotel Fire

Outburst after failed tryst may have led to fatal blaze, officials say

PARIS | A night watchman's girlfriend who placed candles on the floor to set the scene for a romantic tryst but then left in a rage over his drunken state may have accidentally caused last week's hotel fire that killed 24 people, prosecutors said Tuesday.

The woman, who was detained

Monday, told police she placed a dozen burning candles on the floor of the breakfast room of the Paris Opera hotel, then threw piles of clothes on the floor and left after she became angry that her boyfriend was drunk.

The prosecutors' office said it was opening an investigation for "fire caused involuntarily, manslaughter and involuntary injuries." The woman, identified only as 31-year-old Fatima, was placed under investigation — a step short of being charged — Tuesday evening, judicial officials said.

The night watchman, whose name was not released, was in a coma. France-3 television said the man was "between life and death" after having jumped from an upper floor window during the fire. The report could not be confirmed.

Embattled Italian Premier Calls for Confidence Vote

ROME | Premier Silvio Berlusconi put his political future on the line Tuesday by submitting his government to a confidence vote in parliament, and ministers of his top coalition ally warned they had their resignation letters ready.

Berlusconi is struggling with the worst crisis of his four-year government, triggered by a crushing defeat in regional elections this month. The media mogul's popularity has fallen amid sluggish economic growth and Italy's unpopular military mission in Iraq.

The vote is scheduled for Thursday. If the government fails to rally a majority in parliament, it must resign.

Kuwaiti Women Closer to Voting

KUWAIT CITY | Over opposition from Islamic fundamentalists, lawmakers took a step toward allowing women to enter Kuwaiti politics for the first time, giving preliminary approval Tuesday for them to vote and compete in municipal elections.

The measure requires another vote, giving hard-liners a chance to defeat the bill. Still, activists welcomed the vote as a step toward their larger goal: seating women in the all-male parliament. (AP)

17 Men Return From Gitmo

Seventeen Afghans came home Tuesday in one of the biggest known releases from the U.S. jail at Guantanamo Bay, and one quickly accused the U.S. military of abusing him despite warnings from a senior Afghan official to keep quiet about any complaints. A Pentagon spokesman said the Afghans were cleared of suspicions of terrorist links.

An intelligence official said the men would be held Tuesday night, but could be sent back home as early as Wednesday. (AP)

Italy Returns Part of Obelisk

Ethiopians wept with joy as Italy returned an ancient national symbol Tuesday, delivering by cargo plane the first part of an obelisk that was looted by Benito Mussolini's occupying troops 68 years ago. Court Convicts Argentine Of Crimes During 'Dirty War'

A Spanish court convicted a former Argentine naval officer of crimes against humanity Tuesday and sentenced him to 640 years in prison for throwing 30 naked, drugged prisoners from planes during his country's "dirty war" on leftist dissenters more than two decades ago.

The verdict closes Spain's first trial under a law that says crimes against humanity can be tried in the country even if they are alleged to have been committed elsewhere. (AP)

GM Posts Deep IQ Loss of $1.1B

High costs, sales woes fuel steepest quarterly drop in over a decade

DETROIT | General Motors Corp. reported its deepest quarterly loss in more than a decade — $1.1 billion — as rising health care costs and lackluster response to some new models hammered its North American business. With health costs not getting any cheaper and Asian automakers grabbing more of the market, the outlook for the world's largest automaker remains bleak. The January-March loss amounted to $1.95 per share, compared with earnings of $1.3 billion, or $2.25 a share, in the year-ago quarter, when the company benefited handsomely from its finance arm and improved business in Asia. It marked Detroit-based GM's steepest quarterly deficit since the first quarter of 1992, when it reported a $21 billion loss primarily because of changes in accounting procedures for retiree health care costs. Revenue fell 4.3 percent to $45.8 billion from $47.8 billion a year ago. "We expected a difficult quarter," GM chief financial officer John Devine said in a conference call with investors and automotive journalists. "Obviously, that's what we saw." The company behind brands such as Chevrolet, Saturn and Hummer simply hasn't had the response to a slew of new products it expected. GM led the industry with 29 U.S. vehicle introductions in 2004 and plans to follow that with 17 this year. On top of lukewarm car demand and rising medical costs, GM also battled intense pricing competition in the first quarter. Revenue per vehicle in North America fell to $18,396 from $19,084 a year ago, in part because of reduced pricing on some vehicles. JOHN PORRETTO (AP)

Surge of Interest Sought For Forgotten Soft Drink

CARLISLE, PA. | Surge blasted into the cola wars in 1997, billed as a "fully loaded citrus soda" and backed by TV ads that showed kids tripping over each other to grab a bottle. These days, Surge is the beverage equivalent of an endangered species: Coca-Cola stopped marketing it about five years ago and it's no longer sold in bottles or cans. But a far-flung band of devotees is clamoring for its revival and keeping the Surge legacy alive with a Web site — www.savesurge.org. "I never expected when I started the Web site that it would still be going three years later," said Eric Karkovack, 27, who hasn't had a swig of the bright green liquid since 2003. "I just figured that, like most of these sites that want to save something, that it would be a fad."

This is the closest Web designer Eric Karkovack gets to Surge these days. To pressure Coke, savesurge.org has targeted letter-writing campaigns at Wal-Mart Stores Inc., Coke's biggest buyer, and bottling executives. And the drink still has a cult following: Twelve-packs have sold for as much as $152 on the Internet auction site, eBay. MARC LEVY (AP)

Fla. Man Already Owns BenedictXVI.com

By the time Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger of Germany assumed his new papal moniker on Tuesday, it was already too late for the Vatican to buy the corresponding Web address. That's because a St. Augustine, Fla. man, Rogers Cadenhead, registered the address BenedictXVI.com on April 1, hoping that would be the name of John Paul II's successor. He also registered ClementXV.com, InnocentXIV.com, LeoXIV.com,

PaulVII.com, and PiusXIII.com. Cadenhead said he hasn't made any decisions about what he'll do with the domain, but vowed he wouldn't pawn it off to the highest bidder. DAVID MCGUIRE (WASHINGTONPOST.COM) More: Get the full story at technews.com

Investigators Seek Cause for Crash

Mechanical failure is ruled out in accident that killed 9-year-old

ARLINGTON, VA. | No mechanical problems were found Tuesday in an Arlington County school bus or a trash truck that collided with it, killing a 9-year-old girl and seriously injuring two other children and both drivers.

At a Virginia Department of Transportation facility, investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board, Virginia State Police and Arlington police measured, weighed and scoured the wreckage.

The probe is expected to take weeks.

major mechanical systems in both vehicles were working properly, said NTSB spokeswoman Debbie Hersman. Both vehicles also had data recorders — similar to the "black boxes" recovered from airplane crashes.

Meanwhile, an anonymous benefactor has come forward to pay nine-year-old Lilibeth Gomez's funeral expenses, school officials said, including transportation for the family to and from El Salvador.

The PTA at Hoffman-Boston Elementary has also established a fund to cover hospital bills for the two injured children.

Only 45 of the usual 60 to 65 students rode Tuesday on the bus route where the crash occurred, school officials said. LAUREN FRAYER (AP)

Metro Plans New Signs, Ready to Hear from Public

WASHINGTON | Metro announced two efforts Tuesday to show Metrorail is responsive to customer complaints.

The transit agency has now developed a way to put the number of cars on the display signs that signal when the next three trains are approaching, and what lines they serve.

The new signs will be in use by the end of May, Metro says.

Metro also plans to let riders have a say at monthly Metro Board meetings. Beginning Thursday, the public can sign up 15 minutes before the meeting starts. That will get them up to two minutes to speak out about the subways and buses. (AP)

Court Halts Hazmat Ban — For Now

WASHINGTON | Hours before a law banning hazardous rail shipments was to take effect in the nation's capital, a federal appeals slammed the brakes on it Tuesday.

CSX Transportation filed an emergency motion asking to block the District of Columbia's ban until the freight railroad has time to argue its case in court.

A three judge U.S. Court of Appeals panel asked both the city government and the Sierra Club to file written motions by Friday. The order calls the stay an emergency action designed to give the judges time to review the merits of the emergency motion — adding it "should not be construed in any way as a ruling on the merits of that motion."

The CSX appeal argued rerouting trains west from Richmond, Va., through Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York, would add hundreds of miles and days of transit time.

The rail company also questioned whether a local government — rather than the federal government — has the right to regulate rail traffic.

U.S. District Judge Emmet Sullivan denied CSX motions for a preliminary injunction on Monday.

Redskins Acquire Another Top Pick

After denying trade reports, team deals for No. 25 draft choice

REDSKINS | Hours after declaring they wouldn't trade their ninth overall selection in Saturday's NFL draft, the Washington Redskins acquired another first-round spot, the 25th overall, from Denver on Tuesday.

The Broncos received the Redskins' third-round choice (76th overall) this year, plus Washington's first-rounder and fourth-rounder in 2006.

The trade should enable the Redskins to address needs at cornerback and wide receiver, both strong positions in this draft.

Earlier Tuesday, after The Washington Post reported the Redskins were discussing a trade that would send the No. 9 pick to the Oakland Raiders for cornerback Phillip Buchanon and a second-round selection, vice president of football operations Vinny Cerrato issued a terse statement intended to put the story to rest.

"That is not true," Cerrato said. "We are not trading that pick."

But an official within the league, speaking on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press that the team has discussed a possible trade for Buchanon in recent days, but the official said none of the scenarios involved Washington's first-round pick.

Coach and team president Joe Gibbs later clarified the Redskins' position. "Right now, we've had no discussions with anyone about trading away the ninth pick," Gibbs said. "Are we considering any options we are presented with? Yes. We'll consider anything." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

NFL Called To Testify On Steroids

House panel asks Tagliabue, others to discuss league policies

WASHINGTON | The congressional committee that investigated steroid use in baseball will turn its investigation to the same problem in football. The panel said Tuesday it will ask NFL officials and union representatives to testify at a hearing next week.

"A public review of the NFL's strategy for combatting steroid use marks the next step in our investigation," said Rep. Tom Davis, chairman of the House Government Reform Committee. "Examining the effectiveness of the NFL's policy is a key part of understanding why 500,000 high school students today have tried steroids."

Invited to the April 27 hearing are NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue; Gene Upshaw, vice president of the NFL Players Association, and Harold Henderson, the NFL's executive vice president for labor relations.

The committee held an 11-hour hearing on steroids in baseball last month featuring Mark McGwire and Jose Canseco. (AP)

Robinson Stays Course With Slumping Guzman

Nationals manager leaves light-hitting shortstop in lineup

NATIONALS | Washington Nationals manager Frank Robinson has tried a number of things during shortstop Cristian Guzman's struggles at the plate, which began in spring training and have carried into the regular season.

One solution Robinson doesn't want to employ: taking Guzman out of the lineup.

"When you sit a guy for a day, and he sits there, and his mind doesn't relax, it does him no good," Robinson said Tuesday. "I know you can't get out of a slump sitting on a bench."

Guzman entered Tuesday's game against the Florida Marlins hitting .106, with just five hits in 47 at-bats. He's 1-for-21 since singling in the seventh inning against Atlanta on April 11.

Robinson put Guzman, a career .266 hitter before 2005, in the lead-off spot for a short time during the spring. Then Guzman hit second for the team's first four games of the regular season, was dropped to No. 7 or No. 8 for the next seven games, went back up to No. 2 for two games, and was back down to eighth Tuesday.

"The best thing for a player like that is to get a broken-bat hit or hit a nubber or something like that," Robinson said. (AP)

49ers Find Only Fool's Gold

NFL DRAFT | The San Francisco 49ers picked one of the worst years to plummet to the bottom of the NFL.

That's because the first pick in this weekend's NFL draft isn't as clear as usual. There really are no teams that want to trade up for the choice and there isn't a player who jumps out.

The 49ers have looked at four potential No. 1s: quarterbacks Aaron Rodgers of California and Alex Smith of Utah; wide receiver Braylon Edwards of Michigan, and cornerback Antrel Rolle of Miami.

Forget Rolle and Edwards. Teams tend to reach for quarterbacks — especially when they finish 2-14.

Rodgers might be the popular choice because he played in the Bay Area and might be more ready to step in right away. Smith generally is considered a better long-term prospect.

Mike Nolan, the new coach, should think long term and go with Smith. DAVE GOLDBERG (AP)

Inspired Iverson Eyes Title

Point guard in midst of best season as 76ers prepare for the playoffs

NBA | Keeping his name in the headlines — on sports pages, not front pages — has made this a more satisfying season for Allen Iverson.

Iverson avoided off-court troubles and feuds with his coach, which have been as much a part of his nine-year career as his knack for carrying the Philadelphia 76ers on his 6-foot frame.

This year has been all about leading for Iverson. The tattooed, cornrowed All-Star led the league in scoring, led the Sixers to the post-season and emerged as a true team leader for a franchise trying to win with A.I. and a promising cast of still-green players.

While Phoenix's Steve Nash and Miami's Shaquille O'Neal probably will get most of the MVP votes, Iverson has made a case down the stretch to earn his second trophy.

His 2,286 points are the second most in a season in Sixers history and his 30.9 points put him on a list with Wilt Chamberlain, Michael Jordan and George Gervin as the only players with four scoring titles. Oh, by the way, he is averaging a career-high eight assists per game too.

"There's no one playing better than Allen Iverson right now," said teammate Kyle Korver.

Iverson still is searching for his first championship. While the Sixers' streak of 10 wins in their last 15 games entering Wednesday's finale against Atlanta got them into the postseason, Philadelphia (42-39) isn't on anyone's short list of title contenders.

"I feel like we can beat any team in the league," Iverson said. "I feel like if you just throw the ball up, then we've got an opportunity. And that's not cockiness or arrogance or anything like that. I'm just confident in myself and our coaching staff." DAN GELSTON (AP)

Shaq Out Until the Playoffs

NBA | Shaquille O'Neal's bruised right thigh will keep him out of the Miami Heat's final two regular-season games, but the team expects him to be ready when the playoffs open this weekend.

The decision to rest the All-Star center wasn't unexpected since Miami, which wrapped up the top seed in the Eastern Conference playoffs two weeks ago, has nothing to tangibly gain from Tuesday's home game against Charlotte or Wednesday's finale in Orlando.

The Heat will open the East quarterfinals at home either Saturday or Sunday, against Cleveland, Philadelphia or New Jersey.

"We know what he's going to do when playoff time comes," guard Dwyane Wade said. "He's going to be the Shaq no one in Miami has seen yet. We're not worried about that at all." (AP)

Lacoste

3146 M St. NW | 202-965-1893
Mon.-Sat. 10 a.m.-9 p.m.;
Sun. 12 p.m.-6 p.m.

Stepping into the new Georgetown Lacoste store on a sunny Saturday, I was struck with two thoughts: "Oh my God, it's crowded" and "Oh my God, I'm old."

• Style: Bohemian ethnic with a twist of hippy Victorian. Oh, come on — what did you think the style would be? It's Lacoste. Preppy, preppy, preppy, with alligators ablaze.

The signature item is, of course, the polo, although it's been revamped for a new generation. In addition to the typical jersey fabric, they've introduced a pique stretch cotton that's designed to hug you a bit more. There are also three "fits," including the "retro fit," which has the longer shirt-tail in the back. "It's how they wore them back in the day," said my teenage-looking salesperson, immediately making me feel like Laura Ingalls Wilder. The polo is available in men's, women's and kids' sizes in a kabillion colors. And, yes, you are supposed to flip the collars up, apparently.

Eye-catching non-polo-shirt items included a tennis-skirt inspired denim mini ($95) and a candy-cane striped racerback dress ($140).

• Price: The price of the polos depends on the style and fabric, but the typical price is around $75; kids' polos are $80, which makes me immediately question the sanity of anyone who would spend $80 on something with such a high likelihood of coming into contact with bodily fluids. A breezy pair of linen pants will cost you $142; long-sleeved button down shirts for men are $98.

• Service: Top-notch. On a swamped Saturday, staff members were calm and collected in a situation that would have driven lesser workers to homicide. They know the product well and are able to answer questions without sounding scripted — I overheard one staff member cautioning a customer, "If you dry it, your Barbie doll will be able to wear it." A request for a larger size was filled quickly; plus, she added on a shirt in the same color but with a slightly different collar just because she thought I might like it (and I did). Best of all, though: Staff member Lucy remembered me by name on my second visit, even though I deliberately change everything possible about my appearance on different visits to stores.

• Bonus Points: Only two dressing rooms means you get to see young men try on shirts out in public. It makes the inevitable line go faster, if nothing else.

• Bureaucracy: Returns are accepted within 30 days, but only with a receipt. If the item is under $10, you get cash back; over $10 gets you a credit-card refund or store credit.

• Bottom Line: Even if you lived through this trend the last time it was around, good service and new twists on an old look make Lacoste a good stop for the preppy in you.

LIVE ONLINE

Home Front

The Washington Post HOME STAFF share their decorating advice every other Thursday at 11 a.m. on washingtonpost.com/liveonline.

I have mauve carpeting and I'm having a hard time finding a comforter set that will go with it. I was going to purchase the bedding first, and then pick a new wall color to match. Any ideas? (I'm a stay-at-home mom on a budget.) Am I better off ripping up the carpet and putting in hardwood flooring?

Have you considered buying fabric or sheets and either sewing a duvet cover and pillow shams yourself or having someone do it for you?

If you are on a budget, you certainly do not want to rip up useable carpeting and install wood flooring simply because you can't find fabric. If there isn't a good fabric shop in your area, try a Web site such as www.discountfabricsusa.com.

I'm about to buy my first couch ever, and I have NO idea what I'm looking for. What do you suggest in terms of stores with good quality and decent service?

Try Storehouse. They are helpful, friendly, informed and have a wide selection of sofas at reasonable prices. There are lots of branches in this area.

I'm in search of a simple but inexpensive breakfast table for our new nook. Any recommendations?

The new Pier 1 catalogue has a great selection of small, well-priced tables. There is a great design for a distressed white round pedestal table called the Barrington, 42 inches around at $350. Bombay Company has a very stylish dark-wood base with a 54-inch serpentine glass top. The base is $399 and the top is $249.

I'm trying to get extra light into my living room. I have a floor lamp, but really no room for another lamp. A friend recommended getting a ceiling fan with halogen lighting. Is a ceiling fan in the living room common or even an attractive option?

Most designers hate ceiling fans, especially in the living room. I happen to love them in the bedroom so I can avoid the air conditioning chills in summer. Surely there is room for a small plant stand or pedestal and a table lamp, or even floor canisters to throw up lighting?

SO THERE: It's not the hottest rumor to ever circulate about Paris Hilton, but word is relations between "Simple Life" simpletons Hilton and Nicole Richie, right, have so deteriorated that Paris is considering replacing her erstwhile best friend with another, bestest best friend.

Dean's Legacy of Cool

James Dean's three crucial films come out on a deluxe DVD

TEEN ANGEL | While other actors are celebrated on the anniversary of their birth, James Dean's death has always trumped life. This year, the 50th after the car crash that killed him, will witness an unprecedented outpouring of media attention for a man whose Hollywood career lasted but 16 months.

The sine qua non of all these tributes will be Dean's trio of films, to be released May 31 by Warner Bros. as "The Complete James Dean Collection" DVD set. The three movies hold the key to the essential Dean question: Why all the fuss?

A REBEL TO THE END: James Dean, style-setter and the quintessence of the brooding young hunk, gets the deluxe three-DVD treatment from Warner Bros.

Dean created the notion of teenagers as a disaffected underclass. He was able to play both defiant and sensitive, boyish and dangerous.

This was never as true as in "East of Eden," in which Dean plays Cal Trask, the skittish bad son who desperately wants the acceptance of his father. "Rebel Without a Cause" also dealt with the tortured relationship between parents and children, but in a more teen-centric way. "Giant" is Dean's last film, a three-hour, 21-minute behemoth directed by George Stevens.

Among the special features is a spooky piece of Dean ephemera, a public service announcement filmed less than two weeks before his death, in which he says, "Take it easy driving. The life you save might be mine."

Seth MacFarlane expresses himself in two dimensions

VOICES OF THE PEOPLE | He's a family man, evil infant, talking dog and sarcastic alien.

Meet Seth MacFarlane, the creator of Fox's "Family Guy" and "American Dad," as well as the voice of many of the characters on the two witty and ribald animated series.

Fox originally canceled "Family Guy," but has picked it up again, along with his new series, "American Dad."

But now, in response to the success of the "Family Guy" DVDs and reruns on the Cartoon Network's "Adult Swim" lineup, 35 new episodes, along with at least 13 episodes of "American Dad," have been ordered by the network.

"I'm too excited to gloat," the 31-year-old MacFarlane said, laughing.

"American Dad" is about Stan Smith (voiced by MacFarlane), a trigger-happy CIA agent obsessed with national security. Also in the MacFarlane with his creations, "Family Guy" Peter and "American Dad" Stan.

Smith household are ultraliberal daughter, Hayley; Roger, a space alien; and Klaus, a German-speaking, sexually obsessed goldfish.

MacFarlane says the show's concept "sprang from the climate during the [presidential] election ... a very politically charged time, with the whole country split in half."

A liberal on most issues, MacFarlane co-created in Smith a right-wing character. But he said, "It does keep us in check from getting on a soap box, because at the end of the day, you have to like your main character." BRIDGET BYRNE (AP)

For Thomas, No Doubts

Matchbox Twenty's singer takes more than one musical road

MUSIC | Hearing Rob Thomas' distinctive voice, it's hard not think of Matchbox Twenty, the hits-heavy pop-rock band for which he has been lead singer and writer since 1998.

On "Something to Be" (Atlantic), his first solo album, there are a couple of songs that would feel right at home among the group's catalog, such as the melodic ballads "Ever the Same" and "When the Heartache Ends."

Other cuts, however, feature a variety of other sounds, with hints of African, Caribbean, blues and country influences. Kicking off the CD are two throbby up-tempo songs. "This Is How a Heart

MEUSMA/ATLANTIC

NEW GROOVE: Thomas' solo album features guest stars and exotic touches.

Breaks," the faster-paced of the two, ends abruptly and is followed almost seamlessly by "Lonely No More," the album's first single. On both songs, Greater Anointing provides strong, effective background vocals.

More exotic sounds are heard on "I Am an Illusion," featuring a riveting lap steel guitar solo by Robert Randolph. The exotic theme continues on "All That I Am," which begins with simple marimba notes and features a duduk (woodwind), shofar (horn) and the zither-like kanun, as well as a fetching rhythm break.

The title song, which expresses the search for identity, has an edgier feel, while John Mayer and his guitar sit in on the cheerful "Streetcorner Symphony." With its optimistic message and blaring trumpets, the song is reminiscent of something the 5th Dimension might have recorded in the 1970s.

Thomas' growth as a singer and songwriter and his varied musical tastes could win him new fans — as if he needed them. RON BERTHEL (AP)

Rob Thomas will be at the 9:30 Club with Beth Hart on Saturday, April 30; 703-218-6500.

THEIR LOVE IS REAL, BUT THEY ARE NOT: “Survivor” and “Amazing Race” vets Rob Mariano and Amber Brkich can’t get enough camera time. They’ll wed on a May 24 TV special on CBS, home of “Survivor” and “The Amazing Race.”

A Bout With Fate

USA documents the hard-hitting history of a deadly prizefight

SWEET SCIENCE’S DARK SIDE | A remarkable tale of lost New York, a bygone television era and most importantly of human loss and heartache, “Ring of Fire: The Emile Griffith Story” (9 p.m., USA) is a fine film, deserving of this special commercial-free airing.

Born in the Virgin Islands, Emile Griffith arrived in New York City in the 1950s. Like many immigrants, he took to the boxing ring as way of moving up; he was also a fine natural fighter. In addition, he happened to be gay.

By 1962, his chief rival was Benny “Kid” Paret. During a weigh-in, Paret taunted Griffith with a crude Spanish slang term for homosexual. Griffith and Paret fought three televised fights, and in their last bout, Griffith beat Paret so savagely that “the Kid” never recovered — he slipped into a coma and died 10 days later. This fight shocked the public imagination — millions of viewers had seen a man beaten to death on live television.

The balance of “Fire” follows the efforts to reform boxing, the cancellation of “Friday Night Fights” and the last years of Griffith’s boxing career. But the film’s real story is that of a haunted man. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

The Mercedes-Benz CLS500 hits jackpot on the sexy-o-meter

ROAD TEST | Naming a new car model is never easy. Automakers invest millions and, despite vetting by linguists and focus groups, there's often severe blow-back.

The Mercedes-Benz CLS500 will forever be known as the "Cialis" 500 — which, art or accident, is fitting. This is car design in a highly aroused state.

With an arched beltline paying out from the tops of the front wheel wells, the CLS500 looks as tensed as Artemus' bow. The sheet metal cavorts nose-to-tail in glow-

It's sleek, it's wide; it's got that extra something that makes it hard not to stare.

ing rhythms that converge at the knife-edge deck lid.

The car's "greenhouse" — that glassy part above the fuselage — is narrow and swept rearward, elongating the hood and shortening the trunk to enhance the visual cues of a luxury coupe. The execution is flawless: prowling, predatory, concupiscent.

The CLS lost the center rear seat position; a central floor console separates the two rear buckets set deep in the aft compartment, which is comfortable but by no means spacious.

Not too long ago, under pressure from animal activists, Mercedes-Benz agreed to offer a no-leather option in all its cars. There's clearly no such detente with friends of the forest, since the CLS has plenty of wood: A handsome hunk of matte burl walnut the size of a Cypress Garden slalom ski stretched across the dashboard; the central rear floor console uses similar cabinetry.

The instrument panel, gauges and mirror controls are limned in chrome bezels. It's lovely and lux.

Shakespeare asked: What's in a name? In the case of the CLS, quite a lot. DAN NEIL (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Cadillac Escalades will have option for satellite television

OPTIONS | KVH Industries, a maker of satellite TV receivers for cars, boats and trucks, said Tuesday its system will be offered as an option in Cadillac Escalade SUVs, the first deal of its kind. Previously, car owners who wanted to install satellite TV systems had to buy them from electronics stores, then have them installed.

"This accessory application at Cadillac is a major milestone in our overall plans to widely offer satellite TV to the light vehicle market," KVH Chief Executive Martin Kits Van Heyningen said. The agreement makes KVH's TracVision A5 system available to buyers as an option. Chris Watson, a KVH spokesman, said the recommended retail price for the option is $2,695, including an extended warranty.

Customers who get the option will need to buy a subscription from DirecTV Group to get programming.

Cadillac sold just more than 50,000 Cadillac Escalade SUVs in 2004, said Kelly Wysocki, a Cadillac spokeswoman.

KVH has been a major supplier of satellite TV receiver systems to boats since the 1990s and to recreational vehicles since 1999, but has eyed the larger car market for some time now.

Recent technological advancements allowed the company to create a smaller antenna that can fit onto smaller vehicles such as SUVs and minivans. The company has been selling its thinner profiled antenna, the TracVision A5, in electronic stores since September 2003.

"This new relationship with GM is a strong operational win for KVH and should further sales of the A5 antenna system," Mike Hickey, an analyst at Janco Partners, said in a note.

According to J.D. Power & Associates, a marketing information company, more than one-third of SUVs and minivans sold in the United States last year came equipped with video screens.

Are You a Trauma Survivor?

Have You Lived Through a Life-Threatening Event?

An event such as physical/sexual abuse, injury, accident or disaster? If so, we are asking you to volunteer for research studies that involve:

- Brain imaging
- Measurement of stress hormones
- Free trial of commonly used medications if indicated

We want to understand the differences in how people respond to and cope with a traumatic experience. Compensation provided.

Technology

As LEDs improve, the technology looks to replace today's light

In 15 years, the fruit of Thomas Edison's bright idea may be gone. The likely replacement: light-emitting diodes, or LEDs.

LEDs have been around for decades, but were mostly used to show the time on clocks or the battery level of a video camera. They weren't used for illumination because, for a long time, they couldn't produce white light — only red, green and yellow.

Nichia Chemical changed that in 1993 with blue LEDs, which combined with red and green produce white light. Since then, LEDs have evolved quickly, and are now rapidly improving in brightness, efficiency and longevity.

Widespread use could bring big energy savings and a lighting revolution. Just this month, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute

"It's hard to convince consumers based on energy savings alone."

NADARAJAH NARENDRA
RENSSELAER POLYTECHNIC INSTITUTE

researchers said they had boosted the light output per watt of a white LED to almost six times that of an incandescent light bulb, beating even a compact fluorescent bulb in efficiency.

SHINING ACHIEVEMENT: LEDs of all shapes and colors were all the rage at a lighting convention in New York earlier this month.

A Brighter Future

The current generation of mass-produced white LEDs isn't that effective; it's about twice as good as a light bulb of the same wattage. But the energy savings aren't enough to overcome the extra expense. "It's hard to convince consumers based on energy savings alone," said Nadarajah Narendran of Rensselaer.

Development is brisk, however, and the Department of Energy has estimated LEDs could cut national energy consumption for lighting by 29 percent by 2025. The total savings on household electric bills until then would be $125 billion.

LEDs have other advantages that are propelling them into niche uses. Current white LEDs will last up to 50,000 hours, about 50 times as long as a 60-watt bulb. That's almost six years if they're on constantly.

That makes them attractive for places where changing bulbs is difficult or expensive, such as outside buildings or in pools. Hotels are interested in using LEDs to avoid having to replace bulbs, said Jim Anderson of Lamina Ceramics.

But the feature of LEDs most likely to get them into homes is aesthetic. Arrays that mix red, green and blue LEDs can make any color, so a light could have three sliding knobs to mix color. "On a very hot day you might want blue light to cool it down a bit, or on a winter day you may want to simulate sunlight," said Steve Landau of Lumileds Lighting.

Experts say the price of LEDs will keep dropping. "We are still in a very young research environment," said Norbert Hiller, vice president at Cree. "Our researchers keep surprising us." PETER SVENSSON (AP)

Baggage Check

ANDREA BONIOR, PH.D.

Trying Not to Try

I'm a fairly normal 30-year-old guy, except for my sparse relationship experience. It's not for lack of trying: I date around (more PG than R-rated) but nothing's clicked. Could this lack of baggage be its own form of baggage? According to my sister, "It'll happen when you least expect it." I've tried actively looking (at bars, work, even Metro) and I've tried actively NOT looking. She says, "No, stop thinking about it altogether." When the weekend is 72 degrees and sunny and there's no one special to share it with, that's a rather tall order. — BAGGAGE? IN METRO D.C.

A tall order indeed. Since you can't force yourself not to hope for something (and if you could, you'd probably miss out on some great opportunities), it's hard to justify Sis' way of thinking.

As long as "nothing's clicked" means nothing's actually clicked, rather than that you're as emotionally unavailable as a sheet of plywood, you may simply be guilty of being very selective, or a bit shy, non-aggressive or slow to demand pants access. To women looking for a meaningful relationship, these latter qualities are not only anti-baggage, they're also quite desirable — and a nice relief from guys who tally 30 women by Tax Day. So keep at it. Get creative: dating sites, mixers, volunteer work, sports, a fun class. The 72-degree weekends have just begun.

How do you convince a loved one to seek counseling? I know, I know, you can't force it, but it's obvious my husband could use some help for his depressive/antisocial tendencies. I can't be the one to rescue him out of each funk without going crazy myself. — DESPERATE WIFE IN D.C.

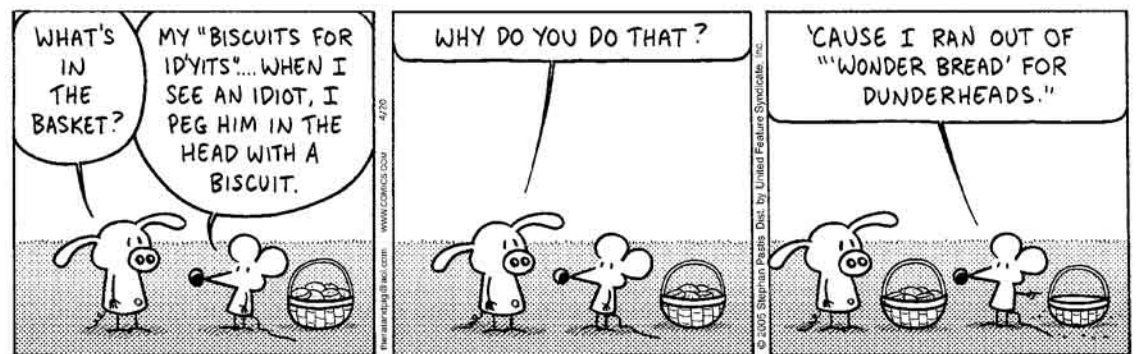

In short, by convincing him how much better your relationship could be, and how much you're speaking out of love and concern. The trick is not being accusatory or making it about his flaws. Ease him into it with some books (Martin Seligman's "Learned Optimism" talks about the thought patterns that can lead to depression) or Web sites (www.apahelpcenter.org); offer to set up or go with him to the first appointment; hear out every one of his objections with a patient and open ear. And then, of course, do your best Judge Joe Brown to overrule them.

Send your mental health and emotional wellness questions to Andrea Bonior, Ph.D. at baggage@readexpress.com. This column is not a substitute for one-on-one care.

To Be Fit, Cut Out the Fat

THE LOW-CARB craze has left many Americans struggling with their weight, but at least the food banks in Appalachia are benefiting from the surplus of specialty diet foods ("Diet Hills" in the April 14 Express).

As a physician, I always suspected the low-carb fad would fade. High-protein diets are hard to maintain because they limit the intake of fiber-packed fruits and vegetables and are too high in fat and cholesterol.

But a low-fat vegetarian diet is easy to maintain and can help shed and keep off unwanted pounds. Combined with physical activity, this diet will keep you fit and healthy for life.

Joanna Kerns Is Really a Man! No, Sorry, That's a Lie

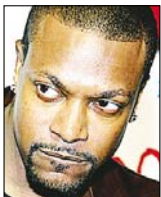

ALAN THICKE, 58, will wed his long-time girlfriend, Tanya Callau, in Cabo San Lucas, Mexico, on May 7, his publicist said Monday. It will be the third marriage for Thicke, who played Jason Seaver on ABC's "Growing Pains," which ran from 1985 to 1992. "I'll be on my third honeymoon, so I'm more of an authority than I care to be," Thicke joked in a statement. Thicke had a cameo in the 2004 film "Childstar" and is producing and writing a television pilot called "Second Honeymoon." (AP)

STING stunned students in a music composition class at the University of Illinois-Chicago when he showed up unexpectedly on Monday, Reuters reported. The appearance was filmed for mtvU's "Stand In." Sting took questions, performed old favorites and handed out free advice. "We're not building cathedrals of sound here, we're building sheds," he told the college kids, suggesting that they not worry too much about details, but turn to music as a way to nourish the soul. He wrapped up with a rousing rendition of "Every Breath You Take." (EXPRESS)

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Interruptions will be unavoidable. But if you can keep each one from setting you back, you can pick up from where you left off.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Arrangements will be difficult to finalize — particularly where large groups are concerned. Leave details for another day.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your own beliefs and opinions may come under some scrutiny. You needn't take anything personally, however — including criticism.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll receive news which breaks a deadlock of sorts and which allows you to begin moving boldly in a new direction.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Some may consider you a sourpuss — and indeed you may be letting your mood shape your behavior far too dramatically.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Don't blame yourself for those things that go awry. Not everything can fall under your control or jurisdiction.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Be especially careful that you give a loved one the respect and admiration he or she needs and deserves. Don't keep feelings under wraps.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Let your sense of adventure take charge. There are many doors that will be opened to you, and you can be eager to explore them all.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Let up a little and lift your nose from the grindstone. Your overall awareness is being blurred by your own work ethic.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You have many important friends whom you care about dearly — but be sure to make time for your own private interests.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Your gentleness and sensitivity will be in demand; those around you seem to need precisely that which you have to offer.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your enthusiasm and cooperation will be highly appreciated throughout the day. Be sure that others don't take advantage of you, however.
